

On this Thanksgiving, I encourage us to pause to reflect on all of your blessings. We live in a blessed community that cares for one another and believes in our community and those that call Frankfort home.

I am thankful for the first responders who are away from their families this Thanksgiving to provide for our community. I am privileged to work alongside some of the best employees. They give more than they take, provide many excellent amenities, and provide the best services to our residents.

I am thankful for all our military personnel in the Armed Forces who are away from their loved ones. I pray that they feel our love from afar and return home to us soon.

As the holiday season begins, I am reminded every day that the City of Frankfort is blessed with some of the best business owners. They provide us with unique shopping and dining experiences. They create a vibrancy in Frankfort, and I am blessed to have them believing in Frankfort.

This Thanksgiving, I pray that you are able to spend quality time with family and friends. I hope you cherish these moments and memories for years to come. Happy Thanksgiving.

God Bless,

Mayor Judy Sheets
